

Submitted April 3, 2010

HillWriter

I just watched this coverage out of some duty to stay current in these things. But absent a screaming and ranting reporter, Scientology coverage is becoming pretty blah.

Per Anderson Cooper's close questioning, no one had even one cell phone photo of a bruise, no police were called, and it was all a lot of palaver. Do we really have four grown men claiming they all have "battered wife syndrome." Sorry boys, you insult the real battered women of the world. Hope you enjoyed your time on camera.

I did like the sparring match between the ex-wives and ex-husbands. The girls won. They were passionate and believable. The guys were a bit shifty and used-car salesmanlike.

J. VG.